Reporting and usage of saved searches

Q.1. What is the difference between saved search and report?

Ans.

- Saved Searches: Saved searches are used for retrieving data from NetSuite records. This allows us to create customized searches for specific records such as customers, transactions, inventory items, etc. Saved searches offer filtering, sorting, and grouping options. The results of a saved search can be viewed as a list, a pivot table, or a chart. We can also export the data to various formats like CSV, Excel or use it for further analysis or reporting.
- Reports: Reports in NetSuite are designed to present data in a structured and formatted manner for analysis and presentation. Reports provide a way to create and customize formatted reports that display data in tables, charts, or other visualizations. NetSuite provides report builder allowing us to design reports with specific columns, groupings, and calculations. Reports generate formatted documents that can be exported or printed. We can create reports like financial statements, sales statements, forecasts, etc. NetSuite provides around 300 Prebuild reports.
- Basically, saved searches are primarily used to extract data from NetSuite records, offering extensive flexibility in defining search criteria. Reports focus on presenting data in a structured and formatted way, making them suitable for analysis & helping for decision making.
